10545 Godinho de Eredia. Malacca, l'Inde Méridionale, et le Cathay, Manuscrit original autographe en facsimile, et traduit par Léon Janssen, avec préface de Ch. Ruelens, numerous maps, 4to, calf. Brussels, 1882 (120 copies printed) £3

Reproduction and translation in French of a Portuguese MS. in the Royal Library, Brussels; also facsimile of a map in the British Museum by M. Godinho de Eredia. The latter, discovered and described by R. H. Major in 1861, was at first put forth as a claim to the discovery of Australia in 1601, but afterwards characterized by Mr. Major as an imposture. The present volume was produced to show that the map is authentic, though not claiming the discovery. The work itself is extremely valuable as showing the knowledge which the Portuguese had of the coasts and countries of Southern and Eastern Asia—India, China, Malaya, Sumatra, Java, Australia, Borneo, and other islands of the Archipelago at the beginning of the 17th century.

10600 Walker (E. A.) Sophia Cooke ; or, Forty-Two Years' Work in Singapore, illustrated, 12mo, cloth. 1899 2s

10601 Wallace (Alfred Russel) The Malay Archipelago ; the Land of the Orang-Utan and the Bird of Paradise : a Narrative of Travel (1854-62), with Studies of Man and Nature, with 9 maps and 51 illustrations, 2 vols. 12mo, cloth. 1869 £1 2s

10602 — Another copy, calf, gilt edges £1 8s

In this work Wallace records briefly the main results of eight years' explorations in one of the most interesting regions of the world. He travelled about 14,000 miles within the Archipelago, and collected over 125,000 specimens of natural history—mammals, reptiles, birds, shells, beetles, moths, and other insects. The scientific results have been recorded in the transactions of the learned societies by the author and other eminent naturalists. His journeys, over sixty in number, are summarized geographically, zoologically, and ethnologically in five divisions—(1) The Indo-Malay Islands ; (2) The Timor Group ; (3) Celebes, Sulu, and Bouton ; (4) The Moluccan and Banda Groups ; (5) Papuan Islands, preceded by an introductory chapter on the Physical Geography of the whole region, and concluded by a general sketch of the races of the Archipelago and surrounding countries, and an Appendix on the Crania and Languages, with short vocabularies, 59 languages and dialects.

The first Division contains a sketch of Malacca and Mt. Ophir in 1854, and of Singapore town and island as seen during several visits.

10603 — Island Life : Phenomena and Causes of Insular Faunas and Floras, on Geological Climates, &c., maps, 8vo, cloth. 1880 11s

This work includes special chapters on Borneo and Java, Japan and Formosa, Celebes, the Azores, the Galapagos, Sandwich, Madagascar and Mascarene, New Zealand, and other groups.

10604 — Variation and Geographical Distribution of the Papilionidæ (Butterflies) of the Malayan Region, pp. 71 and 8 coloured plates (Trans. Linnean Soc.), 4to. 1865 10s

Two chapters are given to Pulo Penang and Malacca visited on the outward voyage in S-pt., 1811, four views of the former and two of the latter illustrate the text.

10606 Wilkes (Commodore) Narrative of the U.S. Exploring Expedition, 1838-42, with 64 full-page steel engravings, 47 steel vignettes, 250 woodcuts, chart, and 14 maps, 5 vols. imp. 8vo, with Atlas of 5 charts, 4to, half-calf. Philadelphia, 1845 £4 10s

After exploring and surveying several groups of islands in the Pacific, the expedition visited on its homeward route the Philippines, Singapore, Cape of Good Hope, and St. Helena.

Over 40 pages are devoted to a description of Singapore, the variety of races and languages—Chinese, Malays, Hindoos, Parsees, Arabs, and other Mohammedan sects ; the trade, climate, bot any, plants, &c.

- 10678 Nieuhoff (Rev. John) Voyages and Travels to Brasil and the East Indies, maps and plates, folio, calf. (Churchill) 1707 £1

Mr. Nieuhoff was in Brasil 1640-49. He sailed to the East Indies in 1653, visiting the Cape and China, a voyage described in his narrative of the Dutch Embassy (see above p. 400), returning to Holland in 1658. In a second voyage to the East Indies (1659-70) he went on from Batavia to Amboyna, Bourro, Formosa, Malacca, Sumatra, Point de Galle, Goa, Persian Gulf, Malabar Coast, returning to Batavia, where he resided three years. His account of Java, its cities, kingdoms, and people, their religion, occupations, customs, the trade and government of the Dutch, occupies the larger part of the volume and is illustrated by 38 large plates, including plans and views of Batavia, the Javanese, animals, birds, fishes, &c.

The author made a third voyage to the East Indies in 1672, to Mozambique and Madagascar, where, going ashore, he is supposed to have been massacred with several of his company. None of them were heard of again.

- 10681 Raffles (Sir Thomas Stamford) Memoir of his Life and Public Services, with Details of the Commerce of the Eastern Archipelago and Selections from his Correspondence, by his Widow, portrait, 4 maps, and 6 plates, 4to, calf (fine copy) 14s

- 10682 — Another copy, 4to, half-calf. 1830 11s

Sir Stamford Raffles was Secretary to the Government of Penang, 1805-11 Secretary and Governor of Java, 1811-16; Governor of Bencoolen and its dependancies (Sumatra), 1817-24, during which period his scheme for a convenient commercial settlement resulted in the foundation of Singapore. He returned to England in 1824 and died in 1826. The night after leaving Bencoolen the "Fame," in which he sailed, was burnt, all lives were saved, but Raffles lost all his papers, including Histories of Sumatra, Borneo, and every isle of note in those seas, an account of the establishment of Singapore, history of his administration, grammars, vocabularies, a grand map of Sumatra, 2,000 drawings, and a Noah's ark of animals.

Among the Appendices to the 'Memoir' are Dr. Horsfield's Account of Sir Stamford's efforts to promote the objects of science in Java, with a catalogue of zoological specimens (pp. 602-697), prospectus of the London Zoological Society (promoted by Raffles); Report of the Administration of the Eastern Islands in 1819: Minutes on the Establishment of a Malay College, local laws and regulations, &c., at Singapore (pp. 88). The volume contains valuable information upon various parts of the Straits Settlements and the Archipelago, and has a very good index.

- 10683 — Memoir of Sir Stamford Raffles, new edition, with portrait, facsimile letter, 2 maps, and plate, 2 vols. 8vo, cloth. 1835 8s 6d

This edition is without the appendices, the index, and some of the documents, which were thought necessary to be printed in the first edition in justice to Raffles's public character. Sir Stamford's addresses to the Batavian Society are printed at the end of Vol. II.

- 10687 — History of Java, map and plates (those of costumes coloured), LARGE PAPER, 2 vols. royal 4to, full morocco extra, gilt edges (fine copy). 1817 £4 18s

This work, "replete with valuable information, and a lasting monument of the author's ability and industry" (vide Crawford's 'Desc. Dict.'), contains chapters on the geography, climate, mineral and vegetable products, animals, and races of Java; the foreign settlers, Chinese, Bugis, Malays, Arabs, &c., agriculture, manufactures, fisheries, commerce, government, administration, court ceremonies, the Kalangs and other tribes; languages, literature, science, arts, architecture, sculpture, antiquities, religions, Temples of Bambanan, Boro-bodo, Gunung-Prahu, &c.; History of Java before and after the establishment of Mahometanism; list of sovereigns; chronology of events; Proclamations, the Japan trade, accounts of Celebes and Bali, with comparative vocabularies, &c.

- 10689 — History of Java, second edition, 2 vols. 8vo, cl. 1830 12s

To this edition Lady Raffles added a few short notes, prepared by Sir Stamford, and she omitted, according to his intention, the larger part of the comparative vocabularies, retaining only a hundred words in each language. The plates of the first edition were published with a number of additional ones in separate quarto volume:—

- 10690 — Antiquarian, Architectural, and Landscape Illustrations of the History of Java, 92 plates, with large map, royal 4to, calf extra (Sheepshanks copy). 1844 £2 5s

The plates include portraits of Javanese princes, plans and views of ruined Hindu temples, specimens of writings, signs of the zodiac, casts in metal, weapons, implements, and tools, subjects in stone, and ten of costumes, men and women (coloured), by Wm. Daniell and other artists.

- 10691 — History of Java, second edition, another copy, 2 vols. 8vo, cloth; with ATLAS, containing map and 92 plates, 4to, cloth. 1830-1844 £2 15s

- 10692 — The Life of Sir Stamford Raffles, by D. C. Boulger, portrait, maps, and illustrations, royal 8vo, cloth. 1899 6s
